CHAPTER 1

Introduction

Seasonal Migration in India: Wage labour is the chief mode of sustenance for the poor of the country. It is widely accepted that a majority of the workforce in the unorganised sector has no access to social security of any kind. The increasingly uneven spread of economic growth and lax implementation of labour laws has led to a tremendous increase in wage labour migration. Workers are mostly recruited through a huge network of intermediaries including labour contractors against cash advances that bond the workers for a definite tenure. Their wages are settled at the end of the work period for the duration of which they stay bonded to work site, receiving living expenses only. Wages are low, work-hours long and living conditions pathetic.

The special predicament of migrant workers emerges from the fact that migration movements have largely remained undocumented in the country. There is no acknowledgement of the presence of large numbers of seasonal migrants in destination areas. Nor is the fact of seasonal migration acknowledged by source states that see migration as a failure of their development policies and are consequently reluctant to accept it. Large scale national surveys such as the Census and the National Sample Survey (NSS) do not capture seasonal migration for wage labour. This lack of documentation means that migrant workers remain outside the net of public services like education, health, infant care and the Public Distribution System (PDS). As a result, migrants have no entitlements to livelihood support systems or formal welfare schemes.

During 2006 - 2008, Prayas implemented an Innovation Fund<sup>1</sup> project with support from the Aga Khan Foundation, which sought to intervene in this complex and exploitative scenario. This project focused on the migration stream of cottonseed plots that consisted of seasonal migration of almost 200,000 Scheduled Tribe workers to production areas in North Gujarat. A core task of the project was to develop a Wage Labour Exchange that would function as an institutional interface between the employers and the wage labourers in the hinterland. The project was fairly successful. Project interventions increased the collective bargaining of the workforce, increased wages, reduced child labour and highlighted exploitative practices like sexual exploitation at work sites and unsafe work conditions. This led to interventions by a number of civil society and state agencies.

<sup>1</sup> Initiated in 2005, the Innovation Fund was managed by Aga Khan Foundation as a part of the European Union funded SCALE project. A key objective of the Fund was to support innovative ideas which could enhance livelihoods of rural poor in an “economic reform” environment. In addition to identifying and supporting new ideas emerging in the context of rural livelihoods in the semi-arid regions of India, the effort through this Fund was also to gather insights into issues that affect rural livelihoods and to document these processes.

Since the last three years, Prayas has continued to anchor interventions that benefit workers in the unorganised sector, most notably brick kilns. The brick kiln industry in India employs millions of inter-state migrants who toil in near bondage conditions with virtually no support from any agency. Focusing on and beginning from Gujarat, Prayas has established contacts with major source and destination areas of brick kiln workers.

Brick Kiln Workers: Brick kilns are usually found on the outskirts of most developing towns and cities. The prevalent mode of work requires a resident labour force and most brick kilns employ seasonal migrant labour. Movements of brick kiln workers cross cut nationally. There are some major clusters from where workers migrate to brick kilns all over the country. These are some of the poorest areas of the country. For example, workers from the Bilaspur cluster in Chhattisgarh migrate to UP, Gujarat and Orissa. Similarly, workers from the western Orissa cluster migrate to the southern states of AP, Karnataka and TN. The map below shows the inter-state movements of brick kiln workers.

Map: Movements of Brick Kiln Workers from Source Areas

Note: 1. Each X stands for 10,000 workers

The brick manufacturing industry in India is labour intensive, employing up to 10 million workers (ILO Report on Brick Kiln Workers). The industry remains completely manual with almost no mechanisation. Most brick workers are seasonal migrant workers who migrate for six months or more with their families to kiln sites. Belonging mostly to Scheduled Castes/ Tribes and inhabit some of the poorest areas in the country, they constitute one of the most exploited sections amongst unorganised sector workers. Their work hours are inhumanly long – up to 16 hours a day and they work for nominal wages under very difficult working and living conditions. Most workers have accumulated debts that they are unlikely to ever pay up fully. As a result, they can be classified as bonded labour. The interesting aspect which needs to be observed here is that the workers are not only bonded to the owners where they work, but also to the contractors who provide them an advance payment with the promise of providing them requisite amount of labour. Studies suggest that the availability of this vast pool of cheap labour has hindered modernisation of industry as employers have no incentive to invest in labour-saving technology (Urs Heierli and Sameer Matithel, 2008).

Public service providers in destination areas do not have any documentation of the vast number of workers present in their service areas. Consequently, workers and their families are unable to access any public services and their children are denied education. Further, infants and lactating and pregnant mothers do not receive anganwadi benefits. Worker communities are not covered by the primary health system. Physical violence is frequent at the brick kilns. It becomes very difficult for workers to leave a kiln once they realise that work conditions are not suitable. This is primarily owing to the fact that the middlemen leave the workers at the mercy of the owners like property being handed over. Wages at the destination point are calculated and settled at the end of the season when workers have already toiled hard and have no negotiating power.

Labour Process in Brick Kilns: The labour process in brick kilns has a low technology base and is therefore labour intensive. The process of brick making is characterised by a division of labour based on a sequence of specialised activities. The piece-rate system of paying wages and the advance payment given to workers prior to the season ensures that workers toil hard to make or transport maximum number of bricks. The sequence of activities in a typical brick-kiln is discussed below:

(i) Moulding: Raw Brick Making: The first process, locally known as paatla, involves mixing earth with water and shaping it into bricks that are then sun dried. Paatla workers arrive at the worksite about a month before the other workers start arriving. Only when a certain number of bricks are ready, the other set of workers arrive. For each brick kiln, lakhs of bricks are required. Each brick kiln, in our estimation, should have about 50 paatlas and each paatla works for about 140 days in a year. Each day, one paatla consisting of two workers prepares about 1,000 bricks for which wage range was Rs. 300-400 during 2010-11. Paatlas normally work 5-6 days a week. There is a weekly holiday on each brick kiln, usually Friday, but can be any other day as well. Each paatla gets weekly living expenses ranging between Rs. 500-700.

Working hours are very long and can last up to 16 hours a day. Usually, there is no electricity available during night work. Workers have to arrange for lighting on their own and invariably, rely on kerosene. However, the supply of kerosene is usually limited. The cost has to be borne by the workers themselves and the average cost of kerosene is Rs. 50 per litre. Each paatla requires about 10 litres of kerosene per month. Night work is preferred especially during summers.

(ii) Bharai: Sun-dried bricks are shifted for stacking in kilns for baking. A large number of the workers involved in the Bharai process are from Marwar areas of Rajasthan and usually work in teams of two. Wages are calculated on a piece rate, where workers are paid around Rs. 120 for producing one thousand bricks.

(iii) Khadkan: Bricks are arranged in kilns for firing. This task is largely done by workers from Dungarpur and Marwar areas of Rajasthan.

(iv) Jalaiya: This process involves the firing of chimneys and is undertaken by workers from Pratapgarh and Etah districts of UP.

(v) Nikasi: Fired bricks from the stacks under the chimney are removed and transported in wooden hand propelled carts. This task is undertaken by Marwari labour chiefly from Nagaur District.

(vi) Loading: Finished bricks are loaded into trucks for outward carriage.

Prayas Centre for Labour Research and Action (PCLRA): Prayas is a thirty year old NGO that works for the empowerment of marginalised communities. Within Prayas, the Centre for Labour Research and Action (PCLRA) works on the issue of seasonal migration. PCLRA has worked with kiln workers in Gujarat to facilitate a union of brick kiln workers. The Union has led wage struggles that have resulted in significant wage hikes – up to 80 percent over a three year period. The Union has settled hundreds of wage disputes over the last three years and its relentless efforts have ensured the release of more than a 1,000 labourers from bondage in Gujarat. A key feature of the work has been that the mobilisation of workers has been undertaken in source areas also. Consequently, the Union has reached out to all the source states from where workers migrate to Gujarat. These include Rajasthan, UP, Chhattisgarh and Scheduled Tribe areas of Gujarat. PCLRA has also established contacts in the western Orissa Scheduled Tribe belt from where brick workers go out to work in southern states of AP, Karnataka and TN.

In addition to mobilising brick kiln workers, PCLRA has worked on linking them with public services like education, health and ICDS. It was able to initiate these services in the central and north Gujarat cluster for almost 300 kilns. Service linkage activities were also carried out successfully in the Maandal cluster of Bhilwara District in Rajasthan where 60 kilns are located.

Wage Labour Atlas of Brick Kiln Workers and its Uses: This document seeks to bring together the database of information generated by Prayas over nearly five years of work with brick kiln workers in Gujarat and Rajasthan. It documents:

- Production areas down to the brick kiln level
- Source areas down to village levels
- The legal and political framework that regulates the industry
- Conditions of recruitment and role of labour contractors
- Socio-economic conditions of workers in their source areas

It is expected that this document will be of use to various stakeholders including public service departments seeking to provide services to brick kiln workers in source and destination areas, education departments to track movement of students unions and activists who want to organise workers and employers who want to hire workers.

Methodology Used to Develop the Atlas: A wide array of data sets have been used to compile this atlas. PCLRA has been working with the kiln workers in Gujarat for four years now and has collected a wide range of data during various interventions. The existing data was supplemented by fresh data collection. The main sources of data are listed below:

- Verification of kilns by field visits
- Lists of brick kilns of various departments like Gujarat Pollution Control Board (GPCB), Gujarat Mining Development Corporation (GMDC) and Directorate Industrial Safety and Health (DISH) obtained through Right to Information (RtI)
- Patient list generated during the health camps that carried the source area information for 2009 and 2010
- Sarva Shiksha Abhiyan (SSA) mapping of children of school going age carried out in 2010
- Mapping of children below six years and other relevant categories by Integrated Child Development Services (ICDS) department in 2010-11
- Household socio-economic survey carried out in 2011

Coverage of the Atlas: The atlas covers the destination areas of Gujarat and one cluster of brick kilns in the Bhilwara district of Rajasthan. It covers all of Gujarat except for the districts of Junagadh, Porbandar, Amreli in Saurashtra and Dangs in South Gujarat. These districts have been left out because most of the kilns in these districts are small-scale kilns. The project did not have sufficient resources to map these. This is also the reason for covering only one cluster in Rajasthan.

Structure of the Report: Chapter 1 provides an introduction to the brick kiln sector and to the work done by Prayas in this sector. Chapter 2 discusses production areas in Gujarat down to the brick kiln level. It also analyses production areas in terms of spatial distribution within Gujarat, technology used and ownership patterns of technology. This chapter also estimates the total number of workers deployed in brick kilns in Gujarat. Chapter 3 examines the source areas from where workers come to Gujarat. A source area is defined as the districts from which workers migrate. The results of a partial mapping of workers in source areas are also provided. Chapter 4 looks at the regulatory framework that governs the brick kiln industry and examines the level of compliance to these laws. Chapter 5 describes the conditions of recruitment. This is followed by a description of socio-economic profiles of brick kiln workers in Chapter 6. Chapter 7 presents the findings of a socio-economic survey carried out as part of the current assignment. The final chapter discusses the potential uses of this database with concrete examples.

Production areas in Gujarat

Generally, brick kilns are located on the periphery of major urban agglomerations. Bricks are a heavy material as a result of which transport costs rise rapidly and become a constraint to cost-effective construction. Empirical evidence suggests that the viable distance for transport of bricks is 30 kms. However, some areas may not have good soil conditions, due to which bricks may be sourced from longer distances. The table below provides the district wise distribution of brick kilns in Gujarat. This list is almost 80 percent complete. The north and central districts of Gujarat have been covered fully. However, the Saurashtra region is yet to be fully covered and may reveal more kilns that have not been listed.

The chart on the next page shows the distribution of kilns on a map of Gujarat. As can be seen, most of the kilns are concentrated along a central axis extending from Ahmedabad down to Surat – also referred to as the Golden Corridor. A detailed list of kilns in Gujarat and in a part of Bhilwara District of Rajasthan is attached in Annexures 1 and 2 respectively.

Chart 1: Distribution of Brick Kilns in Gujarat

Types of Brick Kilns: There are three types of brick kilns – Stack or Hath Bhatta, moveable chimney brick kiln and fixed brick kiln. These are described in detail below.

(i) Stack or Hath Bhatta brick kilns: These are the most primitive types of brick kilns in which all the processes are done manually. Here, green bricks are moulded manually by labour, stacked into layers of brick and fuel and fired at the bottom. The fuel in various layers burns gradually and the heat produced bakes the green bricks. The kiln is left for around 15 days in which the bricks are baked and cooled. Once the bricks are cooled, they are manually removed from the stack, graded into two parts (properly burnt and not burnt) and stacked for selling. Hath Bhatta kilns produce the highest amount of environmental pollution and are the most fuel inefficient. These types of kilns are being used from time immemorial by brick manufacturers in India. On an average, they produce one lakh bricks per annum.

(ii) Moveable Chimney brick kilns: As the name suggests, these kilns have chimneys that can be moved in different positions as the fire moves through the kiln. Moveable chimney kilns are made of iron and have a life span ranging between one to two years. The cost of erecting a moving chimney is approximately Rs. 1 lakh. Unlike a fixed chimney kiln, moveable chimney kilns require maintenance every year. The land requirement of moveable chimney is less than the fixed chimney and they can be operated on an area of as low as two hectares. The production capacity of these types of chimneys is 15-50 lakh bricks per annum.

(iii) Fixed Chimney brick kilns: As the name suggests, these kilns have chimneys that are in a fixed position as the fire moves through the kiln. Fixed chimney kilns are made of concrete and have a life span ranging between six to eight years and the cost of erecting a fixed chimney is between Rs. 6 lakhs to Rs. 10 lakhs. Unlike a moving chimney, it does not require maintenance every year. Fixed chimney, unlike a moving chimney, cannot be set up in small area of land. The viability of a fixed chimney kiln is only achieved when the brick kiln is set up over at least five acres of land. The capacity of this kind of kiln is around 40 - 80 lakh bricks per annum.

The district wide distribution of various types of kilns is shown in Table 2. While masonry and moveable types of chimneys have been mapped to a high degree of accuracy, Hath Bhattas have not been counted to the same degree of accuracy. The reason is that it is not easy to count all Hath Bhattas. While chimney brick kilns are visible because of their height, Hath Bhattas can be set up anywhere. However, the working and living conditions of workers employed are not very different across these various types of kilns. In Saurashtra, where Hath Bhattas predominate, most of these kilns are operated by the household members of the owner and therefore, the use of hired labour is quite low. In addition, kilns are predominantly owned by people belonging to the Scheduled Caste.

Moveable type chimneys are concentrated in the central Gujarat districts of Kheda, Anand, and Baroda. These are also the districts where owners from outside Gujarat have migrated to in significant numbers. It is believed that they also brought with them the technology of moveable type chimneys.

Ownership Pattern: A majority of the brick kiln industry in Gujarat is in the hands of the prajapati community. Traditionally, the kumhar or potter community made clay pots but now the community has diversified into brick making all over the state and reaped its economic benefits. The almost complete monopoly of the kumhar community has recently been challenged by outside entrepreneurs from Uttar Pradesh. Hailing from the Etah district and especially from around village Bagrain in this district, Muslim entrepreneurs have established a niche themselves in select districts. Overall 20 percent of the kilns are now owned by this group in these districts. Often, they started out as labour suppliers, entered into partnerships with local brick manufacturers, and then went on to set up their own kilns. The following table provides the list of districts where outside persons have set up their kilns.

Table 3: Distribution of Kilns Owned by Employers from Outside the State

Sl. No.	District	Owners from Outside the State	Total No. of Kilns in the District
1	Ahmedabad	43	397
2	Anand	48	103
3	Bharuch	11	80
4	Bhav Nagar	3	74
5	Dahod	13	31

12	Surat	8	76
13	Surendra Nagar	1	2
14	Vadodara	21	80
	Total	225	1,226

As can be observed, most outside owners are concentrated in the central Gujarat districts of Kheda, Anand, Baroda and Ahmedabad. There is some concentration in Patan District in the north and the Scheduled Tribe districts of Dahod and Panchmahal. Outside owners, nearly all from UP, also tend to bring in the workers from their home states from around their places of origin. This also means continuation of older existing dependency relationships in the new destination areas. UP workers tend to be paid the lowest with highest commissions for the labour contractors. They also tend to have maximum disputes with contractors, most of which are related to the high level of exploitation.

Estimate of Workers Employed in Brick Kilns of Gujarat: Reliable estimates of workforce employed in brick kilns of Gujarat do not exist. However, calculating the number of kilns can arrive at this estimate. A headcount of six brick kilns in Ahmedabad – Gandhinagar area in 2009 showed that there were 160 workers on an average in a brick kiln. If we further assume the number of workers in each moveable kiln to be half of this i.e. 80 and in stacks, half of this i.e. 40, we can calculate total number of workers in brick kilns listed.

Table 4 : Workforce in Brick Kilns of Gujarat

Sl. No.	Type of kiln	Number of Kilns Listed	Estimated Work Force	Total
1	Masonry	1,199	160	1,91,840
2	Moveable	150	80	12,000
3	Stacks	288	40	11,520
	Total			2,15,360

A rough estimate indicates that there are around two hundred fifteen thousand workers employed in brick kilns of Gujarat.

Source Areas

Gujarat brick kilns source their labour from a wide arc spread over the states of Chhattisgarh, Madhya Pradesh, Rajasthan, Maharashtra, Uttar Pradesh and from within Gujarat itself. Within these states, there are different clusters that are geographically and ethnically different. To give an illustration, Rajasthan has two distinct clusters – one centered around Nagaur district in western Rajasthan and the other in the Scheduled Tribe Dungarpur District of South Rajasthan. Similarly, UP has a cluster of paatla and nikasi workers from central - western UP and another distinct group of jalaiya workers from central UP districts centered around Pratapgarh.

The source area analysis has been possible only for the north and central districts of Ahmedabad-Gandhinagar and to some extent for the neighboring districts of Mahesana, Patan, Kheda, Anand, Baroda and Bharuch.

Table 5: Districts and Kilns for which Source Area Data is Available - 2010

Sl. No.	District	No. of Kilns for which Source Area Data is Available	Total No. of Kilns in the District
1	Ahmedabad	26	397
2	Anand	1	48
3	Gandhi Nagar	85	239
4	Mehsana	4	73
	Total	116	757

Gandhi Nagar and Ahmedabad together account for a little more than 40 percent of brick kilns in the state. The source area data is based upon the following two sets of data collected in the year 2010.

- Data gathered in health camps sponsored by Prayas CLRA: A series of health camps were held during the brick kiln season starting from November to March. The patient card listed place of origin, which provided an indication of the source area.
- Mapping of children of school going age undertaken by Sarva Shiksha Abhiyan (SSA): For the first time in 2010, through the initiative of PCLRA, SSA undertook mapping of children of school going age in brick kilns of Gujarat. While orders were issued for carrying out this exercise for the entire state, the mapping was ultimately carried out only in the north and central districts where PCLRA maintained a constant follow up.

The above sets of data have been used to map source areas of brick kiln workers shown in the following table. As can be seen, Chhattisgarh is the major source area accounting for 54 percent of workers in these districts. This is followed by Rajasthan, Gujarat, and UP – all three states accounting for around 15 percent. MP also has a small presence.

Table 6: State Wise Source Areas

Sl. No.	State	Percentage of Workers
1	Chhattisgarh	54
2	Rajasthan	18
3	Gujarat	15
4	UP	13
5	MP	1
	N*	3,669

*Note: N denotes the total number of households of workers whose source data was available.

Chart 2: Movement of Migrant Workers to Gujarat Brick Kilns

Within the states, workers come from a large number of districts, as many as 60 districts in the nine source states that are accounted for. This is a huge diversity accounting for almost 10 percent of the total number of districts in the country. Table 7 provides the districts from where workers migrate to Gujarat.

Table 7: Districts from which Workers Migrate to Gujarat

It is possible to identify some major and minor clusters where workers migrate from. The main clusters, destination areas, type of work, and social profile of workers are profiled in the table below:

Table 8: Main Source Clusters

Sl.No	State	Cluster	Districts	Type of work	Profile of workers
1	Rajasthan	West Rajasthan	Nagaur, Jodhpur, Ajmer, Pali	Khadkan/ Nikasi, Paatla	Scheduled Caste
2		South Rajasthan	Simalwara block of Dungarpur	Paatla, Khadkan for Hath Bhatta	Scheduled Tribe
3	UP	Central and West UP	Kanshiram Nagar, Etah, Badaun, Bareilly, Mathura, Hathras, Aligarh, Farukhbad	Paatla, Khadkan/ Nikasi	Scheduled Caste, Muslim, Other Backward Castes
4		Central UP	Pratapgarh, Allahabad, Raebareilly	Jalaiya	Scheduled Caste, Other Backward Castes
5	Chhattisgarh	Central CG	Bilaspur, Janjgir Champa, Raipur, Korba	Paatla	Scheduled Caste

7		East Gujarat	Dahod	Paatla, Khadkan/ Nikasi	Scheduled Tribe
8	MP	West MP	Jhabua, Alirajpur	Paatla	Scheduled Tribe

Mapping of Source Areas: The project team mapped source area villages independently. While a 100 percent mapping could not be carried out as it would have been too expensive, mapping was carried out in more than 200 villages of six source states. Villages were selected randomly from amongst the core area of pre-identified clusters. Almost 30,000 households were listed as migrating for brick kiln work from these villages. An interesting aspect in most areas is that the workers have more than one option in terms of the destination states and they go to brick kilns in a number of states. One implication of this is that the mobilisation work carried out in one destination state impacts other destination states as well. For instance, Gujarat has seen significant wage hikes in recent years. This seems to have had an upward impact on wages in UP. Chhattisgarh is the common source area for both the states, and Chhattisgarh workers demanded higher wages for going to UP. Table 9 below provides salient findings about the number of households migrating from source villages studied.

CHAPTER 4

Legal and Political Framework

The brick kiln industry in India is regulated by a number of laws like any other industrial activity. Initially, the industry functioned like a cottage industry where the traditional brick making community – mainly potters – would set up a stack at the local village pond. However, with the increase in demand for bricks, the industry has grown in size. There has been some change in technology and chimney kilns account for a major share of production now. However, the industry is also beset by pollution issues because the stacks release smoke very close to the ground. As the traditional brick kiln areas came within city boundaries, there was a demand for relocating the stacks to outside the city limits. It has also faced increased pressure of government legislation to address labour issues within the industry.

The main departments that regulate this industry are:

- Revenue Department: The raw material used in the manufacture of bricks includes clay, which is mined from land. Since the revenue department controls all land related matters, the diversion of land for mining of clay requires permission of the Revenue Department.
- Pollution Control Board (PCB): Brick kiln is a highly polluting industry and has faced legislation on this count. Clearance from PCB is mandatory. The regulations imposed by the Gujarat Pollution Control Board can be accessed at <http://gpcb.gov.in>
- Industries Department: Brick kilns are recognised as Small Scale Industry (SSI) and have to register themselves with Industries Department. Registration is required for environmental clearance as well as for purchasing coal from state-owned enterprises at subsidised rates.
- Labour Department: Since brick kiln is a labour intensive industry, the Labour Department has critical supervisory functions. The main Labour Acts that need to be adhered to are Factories Act, Inter State Migrant Workmen Act, Minimum

Wages Act, Payment of Wages Act and Bonded Labour Act. Labour conditions in brick kilns are known to be exploitative for many reasons including limits on personal freedom and harsh conditions with long working hours. All the Labour Acts can be accessed from the website of Central Labour Ministry at <http://labour.nic.in/act/welcome.html>

- Mining Department: Since the raw material (clay) is mined, a mining royalty is paid to the Mining Department. Gujarat Mining Development Corporation regulates mining activities within the state. Its web site is www.gmdcltd.com

The table below summarises the main Acts that need to be adhered to by this industry.

Table 10: Comparative Analysis of Legislation in the Brick Kiln Industry

Name of Approvals / Clearances	Competent Authority to Issue Approvals	Clearance Time	Cost of Clearances	Implication for the Entrepreneur	Adherence Norm
Incorporation	Registrar of Companies	Around 6 months	Rs. 20,000 (Approx)	If registered, the business can be run legally	All the fixed chimney owners have registered companies
SSI License	Industries Dept.	Around 3 months	Rs 5,000- Rs 10,000	It is required for environmental clearance	All the fixed chimney owners have taken this license
Panchayat Clearance	Gram Panchayat	Around a week	Rs 1,000	It is required for mining of clay (raw material)	Most of the units have taken this clearance
Pollution Control	GPCB		-	Minimum chimney (105') height has to be maintained	Very few kiln owners stick to these norms. Moving chimney kilns are illegal and do not adhere to these norms

Mining Royalty	Mining Dept.	Around 15 days	Rs 3,600 per 1 lac brick to be made	Direct implication on the cost of production	All the kiln owners pay the mining royalty. However, they do not divulge actual quantity of clay to be mined and pay less.
Minimum Wages Act	Labour dept
Sales Tax	Tax dept
PF Act	Labour Dept	-	-	-	Adherence to these norms is very minimal
ESI Act	Labour Dept	-	-	-	Adherence to these norms is very minimal
Health and Industrial Safety	-	-	-	-	Adherence to these norms is very minimal
Interstate Migrant Workmen Act 1979	Labour dept. of both states	-	-	-	Adherence to these norms is very minimal

Industry Compliance of Statutory Regulations: The Right to Information (RtI) Act was used to assess industry adherence to the various regulatory acts described above. Adherence to some of the major laws is listed below in the table. As can be seen, the two major laws that have been adhered to by a third of the brick kilns relate to pollution control and registration as a Small Scale Industry under the Factory Act. Another one fifth of the units are registered with the Mining Department. As described earlier, these registrations are required to access subsidised coal from the state, which is a major raw material in the industry. At the same time, it is reported that some brick kilns use other material, primarily industrial waste, which is highly polluting.

Table 11: Registration Status of Brick Kilns

Sl. No.	Type of Registration	Proportion of Kilns Registered
1	GPCB	30.49
2	Factory Act	32.51
3	Labour commissioner	5
4	GMDC	20.37

Implications of Low Compliance with Statutory Regulations: From the above tables, it is evident that there is low compliance with the regulatory regime. This has adverse impacts on the welfare of workers. Some of these regulations, like Factories Act, directly relate to workers' welfare. Non compliance with environmental norms directly impacts workers' health besides affecting neighboring communities. In addition, non compliance mean that brick kilns remain outside the coverage of service provider agencies like ICDS, Education Department and Health Department.

CHAPTER 5

Conditions of Recruitment and Role of Labour Contractors

Nearly all brick kiln workers are recruited through labour contractors, who play a crucial role in bridging the gap between employers and workers located in distant locations. Most of the workers are Interstate Migrants. The brick kilns of Gujarat attract workers from Rajasthan, Chhattisgarh, UP, MP and Maharashtra. Over a period of time, migration streams have become well established. The most labour intensive task of brick making employs workers from Bilaspur and Janjgir Champa Districts of Chhattisgarh and Nagaur and Dungarpur Districts in Rajasthan. The nikaasi labour is mostly from Nagaur district in West Rajasthan. The jalaiya are mostly from around Pratapgarh district in central UP. All these different migration streams have their own set of contractors.

Social Profile: The social profile of contractors varies. They may be from the same community as migrants or from a different community. Most of them are, however, from the same communities as migrants and have risen through the ranks over the years. The smaller contractors continue to undertake wage labour themselves while simultaneously supplying labour. The larger contractors do not usually undertake wage labour themselves. Paatla contractors are invariably labour suppliers only. The settlement of wages of labourers is done by the employers directly. For some types of work, there is an element of piece-rate based work contract as well. Thus, the jalaiya contractors will undertake contracts for the firing operation of the kiln, with a specified number of workers.

Types of Contractors: All the labour is recruited through a hierarchy of middlemen – big and small. There can be more than one contractor between the employer and the worker. To give examples from brick making, the largest middleman from Chhattisgarh claims to supply workers to 21 kilns. Even at a conservative estimate of some 20 paatla per kiln, this works out to more than 1,000 workers. Often, the large contractor will undertake to supply for a large number of kilns and then recruit labour through smaller village-based contractors who receive a small part of the commission. On the other hand, there are also contractors who themselves work on a paatla besides bringing workers. The large contractors in source areas are often found concentrated in a single village or a group of villages. These are the areas that first got in touch with destination employers and started supplying labour.

Commission Charged by Contractors: Terms of contractors vary across the source areas - Dungarpur (Simalwara), Marwar (Nagar District - Kuchaman city, Degana) in Rajasthan, Chhatisgarh (Bilaspur) and UP. For instance, the rate of commission of contractors for paatla for UP contractors may be up to Rs. 100, Chhatisgarh contractors receive about Rs. 60 per 1,000 bricks, Marwar contractors receive Rs. 20 and Dungarpur contractors receive Rs. 10. The higher commission in the case of Chhatisgarh and UP is because the contractor has to bear the one-way travel cost and all other incidental costs including bribes during the movement of labour from place of origin to place of destination. Since this commission is adjusted from the payment to workers, Chhatisgarh and UP workers are paid less compared to workers from Rajasthan and UP.

Recruitment through Advance/Debt Bondage: Nearly all workers take an advance from contractors before leaving their homes and going to the brick kiln. The contractors take advance from employers usually in the month of August. Contractors arrive in Gujarat for collecting advances from all the areas. In recent times, the full advance may not be paid immediately. A part sum will be paid before the workers leave their homes. The remaining amount may be paid after they have reached the kiln. This advance makes them bonded for the duration of the season. Workers are not paid regular wages during the season. They are only paid living expenses – primarily the cost of food. Their wages are settled only at the end of the season. If a worker tries to leave in between, the wages are calculated at only half the declared wage rate.

In the socio economic survey carried out by Prayas (the findings of which are reported in the next chapter), the average amount of advance reported was Rs. 19,903 per family in the year 2010. There existed wide variation in advance amounts taken. It varied from below Rs. 10,000 to above 30,000. To some extent, the advance varies with the number of workers in the family. The unit of work in brick making is paatla / pathera. Each unit has at least two members but more family members can contribute labour as well. Thus, a family with more workers can take a higher advance from contractors.

Table 12: Advances Taken by Workers

Sl. No.	Amount	Percentage Respondents
1	< 10000	28
2	10-20,000	33
3	20-30,000	21
4	> 30,000	19

There are large differences amongst workers from different states with respect to the advances they take. While an average Bihari family receives only Rs. 4,391 as advance, a Gujarati family takes on an average Rs. 41,174 as an advance. Advance given also varies on the basis of the skills of workers. For example, Gujarati workers are mostly bharai/nikasi workers as a result of which they are paid higher advance amounts.

Table 13: Differences in Advances Received by Workers in Different States

Sl. No.	State	Average Advance Per Family (Rs.)
1	UP	34,313
2	Rajasthan	19,121
3	Gujarat	41,174
4	Bihar	4,391
5	Chhattisgarh	15,076
	Overall	19,903

Number of Contractors: The socio economic survey that accompanied the mapping exercise also listed a total of 285 contractors in different states. This is not an exhaustive list. The large state of Chhattisgarh is only partially covered. Nevertheless, it still provides some information. The state wise number of contractors listed in the socio economic survey is given in the following table. The detailed list of labour contractors is given in Annexure 3 of this report

Table 14: Number of Contractors in Different States

	Total	285

The Business of Contracting and Risks: Labour contractors play a crucial role in facilitating the supply of labour from distant areas to brick kilns. Since they receive a commission on the output, the more workers they supply, the more profit they are likely to make. The wage labour market for brick kilns is a suppliers' market with most employers professing a shortage of labour supply. There is competition amongst the contractors for recruiting labour. Workers seek a large advance before committing themselves to work. There are many incidences of workers taking advance from more than one contractor. The employers, on their part, seek to limit their risk of default by giving workers only a partial advance amount in the very beginning. Typically, they will give one part of advance in source areas and part with the remaining amount after the workers have reached brick kilns. This places the contractor in a quandary as workers will prefer to go with a contractor who offers a higher advance. Very often, contractors end up investing their own capital as advance. There are many instances of labour contractors raising money on high interest rates to be able to give advances to workers. This is a risky proposition if workers do not turn up. If the contractor is not able to supply requisite number of workers, his commission is lost and he is forced to pay back the advance taken. There are again many cases of contractors going bankrupt in the process.

Socio economic Status of Brick Kiln Workers

A household survey was undertaken to understand the socio economic status of brick kiln workers. The objective was to understand the life of the workers away from brick kilns, at their homes, where they are permanent residents. The survey assessed the social status of workers in terms of their caste, their asset base including land and animal holdings, the livelihood profile as reflected by different sources of their household income and vulnerability as reflected by their indebtedness.

Methodology: The household survey was undertaken in source areas from where workers came to work in identified clusters. A total of 249 households were covered across these five states. The selection of states and districts was done on the basis of preliminary information available with Prayas. The major states sending workers to Gujarat and Maandal cluster of Rajasthan were covered. However, this still leaves out some significant clusters like Pratapgarh in UP, Dungarpur in Rajasthan and local Gujarati workers from Bhal area of Ahmedabad. The states and districts covered and number of households from each state is given in Table 15.

Table 15: Number of Households Covered under the Survey

Sl.No	State	Districts	No. of Households	Destination
1	UP	Mathura, Kanshiram Nagar, Etah	33	Gujarat
2	Rajasthan	Nagaur	68	„
3	Gujarat	Dahod	26	„
4	Chhattisgarh	Bilaspur	80	„
5	Bihar	Banka, Bhagalpur	42	Rajasthan
	Total		249

Social and Demographic Profile: Workers generally have a large family size as more people in the family translates into more earning members and therefore more security. The average family size is 5.9 and sex ratio is low at 842. The only state with a positive sex ratio is Gujarat. This is attributed to the fact that the Gujarat sample consists of exclusively Scheduled Tribe community, where sex ratios are positive. The state wise family size and sex ratio are provided in table below

Table 16: Family Size and Sex Ratio

Sl.No.	Total Family Members	Family Size	Sex Ratio
1	UP	6.8	724
2	Rajasthan	5.7	734
3	Gujarat	6.6	1065
4	Chhattisgarh	6.3	916
5	Bihar	4.7	861
	Total	5.9	843

A majority of the workers – more than three fourth – belong to Scheduled Castes. There is also some representation from Scheduled Tribes and Other Backward Castes. In addition, there is a small sprinkling of workers from the Muslim community from UP.

Table 17: Caste Break Up of Brick Kiln Workers (all figures in percentage)

State	Scheduled Caste	Scheduled Tribe	Other Backward Caste	Muslim
UP	62	0	35	3
Rajasthan	100	0	0	0
Gujarat	28	72	0	0

Chhattisgarh	79	0	21	0
Bihar	91	0	9	0
Total	79	8	13	0

Migration Pattern of Household Members/ Members Left at Home: Brick kiln migration is primarily family migration. Overall however, one fifth of the family members are left behind. It is seen that two groups that are left behind in larger numbers are the (i) old people who cannot work and will be a liability at the destination (ii) children of school going age group from 7 to 14 years. The following table below provides break up by age group of family members left behind.

Table 18: Persons Left Behind (all figures in percent)

Sl	Age	Male	Female	Total
1	0-6	22	15	18
2	7 to14	38	36	37
3	15-50	10	13	11
4	More than 50	61	66	63

Children of School Going Age Left Behind: It is seen that workers do make an effort to leave behind the children of school going age. A little more than one third of the children in this age group are left behind. Interestingly, it seems that there is no discrimination on the basis of gender on this count. Roughly, an equal proportion of girls and boys are left behind. However there is wide variation amongst the workers from different states on this criterion. In Bihar, no children are left behind while in UP, only 13 percent children are left behind. In comparison, in Chhattisgarh and Gujarat, more than half the children are left behind. The table below gives a state wise break up of children left behind

UP	13
Rajasthan	43
Gujarat	52
Chhattisgarh	54
Total	37

School Enrolment Rates: The survey explored school enrolment rates for boys and girls in the 7-14 age group. A little more than half the children in this range were reported to be going to school. There existed significant difference between boys and girls on this count.

While 58 percent boys were reported going to school, the corresponding figure for girls was only 42 percent – a difference of 16 percentage points. In UP, the difference was very sharp – 75 percent for boys and 14 percent for girls.

Table 20: School Enrolment Rates

State	Male	Female	Total	N*
UP	75	14	53	38
Rajasthan	75	50	68	87
Gujarat	67	30	48	44
Chhattisgarh	59	65	62	90
Bihar	0	0	0	46
Total	58	42	51	305
N	177	128	305

*Note: N represents the total number of children in 7-14 years age group

Comparing the school enrolment figures with children left behind reveals that while a larger number are reported to be in school, a smaller number are left behind. It is natural to expect that children who accompany their parents to brick kilns miss out on their education. There are no facilities at brick kilns for continuing schooling. It was only during 2010-11 that some schools were opened after intensive advocacy by PCLRA. It is reasonable to assume that majority of the children accompanying parents will ultimately drop out even though they may continue to be on the rolls of schools in their villages.

Asset Base of Brick Kiln Workers

Landholdings: Nearly all brick kiln workers are either landless or marginal farmers. The survey shows that a little less than half of the workers – 47 percent – are landless. The rest own small patches of land. Of those who own land, only a small proportion has access to irrigation. Overall only six percent workers have access to irrigation. The average land holding for those who own land is two acres. Further details are available in Table 21.

Table 21: Land Ownership

	Total	Irrigated
Percentage reporting land ownership	53	6
Average ownership (acres)	2	2.4

State Wise Differences in Landholdings: There are significant differences in landholding across different states. While Gujarat has almost 100 percent landholding (deriving from the fact that the sample comprises of Scheduled Tribe area inhabitants), landholding is low in Bihar and UP. In Rajasthan, almost two thirds of the households own land while the number is almost half in Chhattisgarh. The incidence of irrigation is high in UP and Bihar. The table below provides state-wise details.

Table 22 : State Wise Landholding and Irrigation

Sl.No	State	Percentage Landholders	Percentage Holdings Irrigated
1	UP	39	62
2	Rajasthan	68	4
3	Gujarat	96	4
4	Bihar	19	25
5	Chhattisgarh	50	8
	Overall Average	53	12

Animal Ownership: As expected, there is very little animal ownership amongst workers. The only animal that is owned in some quantity is goats. A little more than one fifth of the workers own goats. Average number owned by those who have reported ownership is 2.4. Amongst Rajasthan workers, more than half the workers own some goats. In fact, Rajasthan workers even carry along a goat or two to the brick kiln along with their other household belongings. Kilns being located in rural areas, it is easy to maintain the goats. The table provides incidence of animal ownership amongst kiln workers.

Table 23 : Animal Ownership

	Bullocks	Cows	Buffaloes	Goats	Sheep	Camel	Others
Percentage reporting	11	15	8	21	0	0	0
Average ownership	1.9	1.2	1.7	2.4	4.0	0.0	0.0

There are significant differences in ownership amongst different states. The table below shows ownership pattern amongst workers of different states. Gujarat workers have higher animal ownership. This may be due to the fact that the sample consists of tribal workers who own some amount of land. It also may be attributed to the fact of better development of dairying in the state. Rajasthan workers have a high incidence of ownership of goats.

Table 24 : Difference in Animal Ownership Amongst Workers from Different States (all figures in percentage)

	Bullocks	Cows	Buffaloes	Goats	Sheep	Camels
UP	0	0	12	6	0	0
Rajasthan	0	7	0	54	1	0
Gujarat	42	27	27	27	0	0
Bihar	0	2	0	7	2	2
Chhattisgarh	20	30	11	4	0	0

Other Assets: The ownership of household assets and other productive assets is shown in the table. As can be seen, this is very low. Cycles are owned by a little more than one third of the households. An interesting aspect is that a small percentage of workers own motorcycles as well. These are labour contractors. While the survey covered workers, some workers graduate to contractors. It is possible to find workers who work themselves while also supplying some labour. TVs are also owned by a small percentage of workers.

Table 25 : Asset Ownership

	Moter Cycle	Cycle	Fan	Diesel Pump set	Electric Motor	Steel Almirah	TV

Livelihood Profile

The livelihood profile of workers has been explored through a listing of household income from various sources. The objective was to get a broad idea of the various sources from which workers earn their livelihood and the respective contribution of these sources to household income. To keep it simple, only the major inflows have been enumerated. The cost inputs to get these livelihoods have not been assessed as this would have made the exercise very cumbersome.

Using this methodology, average gross annual income of brick kiln workers has been assessed to be Rs. 84,738. Going by the recently announced definition of poverty line as being Rs. 32 per capita per day, the annual income for a household on threshold of BPL is Rs. 68,912 for a 5.9 member household. While the average income falls above this line, 43 percent households have reported income below this level.

The graph below shows the respective contribution of various income streams to total household income. As expected, brick kiln wage labour work accounts for the largest and the predominant source of income. It provides 87 percent of household income. Other wage labour and agricultural activities contribute roughly six percent each.

Chart 3

State Wise Differences in Annual Household Income: There are significant differences between household incomes of workers from different states. The table below shows household income across workers from different states. UP workers have highest income followed by Rajasthan and Chhattisgarh. Bihar has the lowest income. This is as attributed to the fact that Bihar workers are working in Rajasthan where the wage rates are almost 60 percent of the wage rates in Gujarat.

Table 26 : State Wise Differences in Annual Household Income

Sl. No	State	Annual Household Income	Per Capita Annual Family Income
1	Uttar Pradesh	130,522	19,194
2	Rajasthan	96,698	16,964
3	Gujarat	76,431	11,580
4	Bihar	45,267	9,631
5	Chhattisgarh	79,109	12,557
	Total	84,738	14,362

Role of MGNREGA

There is much discussion about the contribution of the MGNREGA scheme to household incomes and its impact on distress migration. The survey explored the contribution of MGNREGA specifically. Of the total respondents, 45 percent reported working on the scheme. Average number of work days for those who reported was 45. Average wage was Rs. 108. This is fairly high. Average wages have increased because Chhattisgarh has reported uniformly a very high average wage rate of Rs. 122.

Table 27: Impact of MGNREGA

Indicator	Value
Percentage households reporting working in MGNREGA	45
Average work days	42
Average income (Rs.)	4,585
Wage rate (Rs.)	108

There is significant difference amongst different states as regards to finding work through MGNREGA. Chhattisgarh is at the top with two third of the workers reporting finding work through MGNREGA followed by Rajasthan where roughly half of the workers have reported finding employment through MGNREGA. UP and Bihar follow and finally Gujarat, which has the worst performance.

Table 28 : State Wise Incidence of Work in MGNREGA

State	Percentage Workers Finding work in MGNREGA
UP	39
Rajasthan	49
Gujarat	4
Bihar	38
Chhattisgarh	63

Indebtedness: There is high incidence of indebtedness amongst brick kiln workers. Average debt stands as high as Rs. 51,092/- per family. This is in addition to the advance taken by the workers at the beginning of each brick kiln season. There is wide variation amongst states with Bihar having the lowest indebtedness and Rajasthan the highest.

Table 29 : State Wise Indebtedness

State	Average Debt (Rs.)
UP	50,518
Rajasthan	93,934
Gujarat	63,809
Bihar	13,011
Chhattisgarh	15,718
Average	51,092

Cause of Debt: There are multiple reasons for falling into the trap of indebtedness. Most of the reasons for entering into debt are related to consumption. Marriage expenses account for almost a third of indebtedness followed by illness.

Table 30 : Reasons for Debt (in percentage)

Domestic expenses	Illness	Marriage	Social norms	Agriculture	Other
19	23	32	11	6	9

Source of Debt: Moneylenders are the most common reason for debt among these workers followed by rich farmers or other people in the village who lend money at high interest rates. Banks have less than 10 percent coverage.

Table 31: Source of Debt (in percentage)

Bank	Moneylender	Relative	Brick Owner/ Contractor	Rich Farmer/ Villager

Rate of interest: The average rate of interest is two percent monthly for a little less than half the loans. However, in almost a third of the cases, it is higher. Even when it is two percent, interest is compounded yearly and sometimes even every six months.

CHAPTER 7

Uses of Wage Labour Atlas of Brick Kiln Workers

This atlas has documented the vast database of information generated by Prayas over nearly five years of work with brick kiln workers in Gujarat and Rajasthan. It documents a broad spectrum of issues as listed below:

- Production areas down to brick kiln level
- Source areas down to village level
- The legal and political framework that regulates the industry
- Conditions of recruitment and role of labour contractors
- Socio economic conditions of brick kiln workers

This research is intended to be a learning resource to various stakeholders including public service departments with a mandate to provide services to brick kiln workers at source and destination areas, education departments that can track the movement of students, unions and activists who want to organise workers and employers who want to access workers. Further, it has the potential to impact the formulation of multi-locational livelihood strategies that reduce the vulnerability of brick kiln workers.

User Friendly Software: A key output of the exercise has been development of user friendly software. This software provides a summary of useful information about brick kilns and the workers deployed in these kilns. The software covers the following information

- Comprehensive list of brick kilns in Gujarat and Mandal cluster of Bhilwara district of Rajasthan
- Registration status of the kilns
- Coverage of different kilns by the service departments of education, ICDS and health

- Information on children in different age groups between 0 - 5 years and 6 - 14 years at the kilns
- Source profiling of labour in terms of districts and states from where workers come to work

Linkage of Brick Kiln Workers with Public Services in Destination Areas: As of now, brick kiln workers do not have any access to public services like education, ICDS and health, despite the fact that the current policy framework mandates universal coverage in all these three areas. The gap remains because there is no mechanism through which service departments can factor in presence of a large number of potential clients who are seasonal migrants. This gap will be filled by this wage labour atlas. Using the report, it will be possible to link the kiln workers with public services provided by the state like education, health, and ICDS.

Education: The database can be used to calculate the number of children who are likely to be present in brick kilns. An analysis of children (6-14 years) data in brick kilns shows the following information.

Table 32: Presence of Children from Different States in Brick Kilns of Gujarat in 2010 (data from 42 kilns)

Sl.No.	State	Male	Female	Total
1	Chhattisgarh	279	305	584
2	Gujarat	27	25	52
3	Rajasthan	87	100	187
4	UP	22	15	37
	Total	415	445	860

The data shows that on an average, 20 children of migrant workers are based at each brick kiln in Gujarat. Similar data is also available for Rajasthan Mandal cluster and is provided in following table.

Table 33: Presence of Children from Different States in Brick Kilns of Mandal Cluster of Rajasthan in 2010 (data from 12 kilns)

Sl.No.	State	Male	Female	Total
1	Bihar	122	99	221
2	Jharkhand	5	5	10
3	Rajasthan	44	32	76
4	UP	17	24	41
	Total	190	160	350

Table 33 above shows that on an average, 30 children are present on every brick kiln in Rajasthan. The number of children is higher at kilns in Rajasthan. This may be due to the presence of workers from Bihar in Rajasthan. The socio economic analysis in the preceding chapter showed that workers from Bihar do not leave their children behind at all.

ICDS: Similarly district wise ICDS data is also available for Gujarat. This is given in Table 34 below

Table 34: Children below Six Years in Brick Kilns in Gujarat in 2010

Sl.No.	District	No. of Kilns for which Data is Available	Children 0-5 years	Lactating Mothers	Pregnant Mothers	Female Adolescents
1	Ahmedabad	92	4,020	370	209	1,126
2	Anand	6	139	18	6	28
3	Bharuch	15	581	25	21	96
4	Gandhi Nagar	87	2,458	145	245	116
5	Kheda	9	316	36	15	73
6	Mahesana	8	153	17	13	22
7	Patan	27	451	52	48	90
	Total	244	8,118	663	557	1,551

This data has been used by PCLRA to advocate with various line departments to provide services to brick kiln workers. In 2010, orders were issued by these departments to provide services to brick kiln workers. Similar orders are also being issued in the year 2011. These government orders are attached to the report as Annexure 4.

Workers of brick kilns in Ahmedabad, Gandhinagar, Mahesana, Patan, Kheda, and Anand district of Gujarat and Bhilwara district of Rajasthan have been linked to public services in education, ICDS and health. A total of 238 schools were opened where 4,127 children were enrolled. Bal bhog was provided to 2,081 children between the ages of 0-3 under the ICDS scheme. Hot rations were provided to 250 children between 3-6 years in 10 kilns of Adalaj area in Gandhinagar district. Health department has also begun regular visits to these kilns.

Influencing Policies and Services in Source Areas: The administration in the source area often does not have much knowledge about the extent of migration from their areas. The proposed atlas will highlight migration realities on paper and encourage the administration to respond. The Education Department of the source areas needs to open hostels for children of migrant communities so that children do not migrate and can continue to study. Most educationists agree that the best way to educate migrant children is to ensure that they do not migrate. After sustained pressure, SSA Rajasthan opened a migratory hostel for the first time in Nagaur district at Riyan Badi in 2010. Buoyed by the success of this hostel, the SSA Rajasthan has sanctioned 14 hostels in 2011. Similarly, the information will also have implications on services like mid day meal scheme and PDS.

Organisational Work: The availability of information will also make it easier to mobilise the workers and organise them into a collective for wage struggles and improvement in work conditions.

Evolution into Wage Labour Exchange: The database lists the kilns and their employers on one hand and workers on the other hand. It also provides information on intermediaries. Thus, the data base has the potential to evolve into a Wage Labour Exchange that can be used by both workers and employers alike to locate each other.

Subject: Provision of Health services to Migrant population and their families in Gujarat
Ref: Letter of Centre for Labour Research & Action, No. CLRA/BKW15/3/2011-12, Dt.18/11/11

Dear Colleagues,

You might be aware of the fact that nearly 1400 brick kilns (largely with mason & iron chimneys) operating in 20 districts, over 3000 small haath bhattas and Sugar factories too all over Gujarat where the majority-over 95% of labourers are migrants from other states such as Rajasthan, U.P, Chattisgarh, Maharashtra, M.P & Bihar are working under unhygienic and difficult circumstances.

A list of Brick kiln firms, Sugar manufacturing units and other units where the migrant population is residing are to be made. The migrant population always comes with their family and accompanying little children, pregnant and lactating mothers. They are living in an unhygienic condition without having access to proper sanitation and clean drinking water.

It is been observed that the migrant workers are away from their village and thus the village based primary health services do not reach them. The children and the lactating mothers mostly remain uncovered of the Immunization services and Ante and post natal checkups. Most of these workers are from poor families and the nature of their work and physical state causes chronic illnesses related to this situation such as malnutrition makes the situation graver.

It is an order that a team consisting of ASHA, ANM, MPW, Medical officer & Block Health officer should visit these sites and should organize Mamta Diwas & outreach medical services for health checkups. Surveillance activities should be performed in every 15 alternate days for the prevention of an epidemic situation. Centre for Labour Research & Action, Ahmedabad has been working for Brick kiln migrant workers and may be contacted for technical coordination & details of migrant population for providing outreach services in your district.

The tentative plan of visit should be e-mailed on the id ddrhguj@gmail.com and Monthly report of the health activities and services provided to the migrant population should be reported to this office in the format attached herewith.

PRAYAS

Prayas, an NGO with more than 30 years' experience, works with seasonal migrant workers across the migration streams of agriculture, bricks kilns, cotton ginning and construction. It promotes workers' organisations that undertake struggles for wage hikes and improvement in work conditions. Prayas has undertaken policy advocacy with the state to ensure that migrant workers receive public services in education, health and early child care.

AGA KHAN FOUNDATION

The Aga Khan Foundation (AKF) is a private, non-denominational, development agency, established by His Highness the Aga Khan in Switzerland in 1967. The Foundation seeks sustainable solutions to long-term problems of poverty through an integrated, community-based, participatory approach that reinforces civil society and respects local culture. In India, AKF works essentially in three thematic areas: Health, Education and Rural Development. It also works to strengthen civil society.
